History of Lakeside

Our little story, Tony had been looking for a place where he could set up a naturist holiday park for many years and live the lifestyle that many naturists dream of. Tony had even made an unsuccessful attempt to purchase North Devon Sun Club, after many years of constant searching, by 2003 Tony realised it was almost impossible to find anywhere that was already perfect for Naturism. but did not give up hope and purchased the domain name www.naturistholiday.co.uk in 2004 ready for the day when he did find somewhere suitable.

And then out of the blue in 2005 on the way back from viewing a Skegness holiday park he came across the property called Steeping Fen View “Original name Fen Farm in the 50’s” in the village of Little Steeping now known as Lakeside. It's hard to believe now how different Lakeside looks today compared to what it did back then, it was impossible to see the bungalow from the road because of the amount of weeds, there was no lake. no trees, only one driveway into the property with no gate and no fences, Although the bungalow was not very old, it has not been completely finished and the grounds were totally overlooked from the road but Tony still decided to make an offer to the owner and it was accepted and in 2005. The same year Tony replaced the two static caravans that had been onsite for many years and then works began to make Lakeside more secluded and also to create the holiday lets and caravan / tent pitches, naturists soon arrived days after the website went live in late 2005, Long before Lakeside had gates or even any trees the villager's soon found out there were naturist at Lakeside, but no bad feelings and nothing was said to us. In 2006 Lakeside became affiliated to BN as a naturist holiday site and we also began planting the first run of ten thousand trees and started work digging the two acre lake, work has been non-stop over the years and has created what Lakeside is today with many guests returning every month, Tony met Aly in 2011 and got married in march 2017, and work began on the swimming pool.

we feel very privileged to live in such a beautiful location and see so many guests return to Lakeside and we hope to see you for many years more as returning friends Tony and Alison

Kestrel static caravan

Whether you have booked accommodation or are staying on site in a caravan or tent you may be interested in the range of accommodation Lakeside has to offer.

If you would like to look around all the accommodations we have unoccupied, please call into Reception and speak to Alison and Tony. We currently have three Cabins, two Studios, one overlooking the lake and the other overlooking the gardens plus two Static Caravans which are all reasonably priced.

We make the beds up ready for your arrival and in colder months if you tell us your arrival time, we will make sure your accommodation is cosy and warm.

Wildlife to Spot Around Lakeside

IN BRITAIN, WE ARE TRULY BLESSED TO HAVE AN ABUNDANCE OF WILDLIFE RIGHT ON OUR DOORSTEP. Each animal has its own quirky habits and behaviours which have astonished wildlife enthusiasts for years. The beauty of a Lakeside holiday is that you are never far from one of these fascinating little creatures, so we urge you to take the opportunity to go out and see the wildlife for yourself,

Lakeside Badgers

We have several Badger sets on the dog walk at Lakeside best time to see there is just as it is getting dark, A close relative to stoats, weasels and otters, the badger is our largest land predator, making it an essential inclusion on our list of amazing wildlife you can spot at Lakeside. As social creatures, badgers live in large family groups underground in a 'sett'. It's not likely you'll spot a badger in the day, so get your torch out and look for one at night when they will be hunting for a delicious dinner of small mammals, birds' eggs, earthworms, fruits, roots and bulbs! Their habitat consists of farmland, grassland, heath land, woodland, towns and gardens.

Red Fox

Red foxes are quite common to see near our homes as they rummage for discarded food and scare our cats, but they are a real gem of a wild animal in Britain and we feel our country is a little more interesting with them around. As omnivores, foxes will feed on small mammals, birds, frogs, worms, fruit and berries, making them very adaptable creatures. You might be woken up by foxes barking or making strange screaming noises in the night, especially during the winter mating season.

Common Toad

These amphibious critters have seen a bit of a decline in the past few decades so if you do get to see one, make sure you wish him well! During the spring time you are most likely to see them near ponds as this is their breeding season but spend the rest of the year on dry land, especially in woodlands and grasslands. If you're really lucky, you might get to see the great toad migration, which is usually around Valentine's Day, as the toads head back to their breeding ponds.

Kestrels

To a vole or a mouse, a hovering kestrel is quite a formidable sight, but to us it is something to truly marvel at. As a bird of prey we see often at Lakeside, you're likely to catch a glimpse of one with its pointed wings held out, hovering mid-air looking for a snack. When not hunting, they nest in holes in trees, old buildings and abandoned crows' nests.

Barn owls

“Our barn owl is called Barney when he is about can be seen late afternoon Around the top field” see our website for latest photos of Barney. An impressive hunter, the barn owl is one of our favourite airborne creatures which often makes an appearance at Lakeside. Most commonly seen at dusk and dawn, everything about the barn owl is designed to hunt, from their heart shaped face which directs the sound of prey towards their inner ears to their remarkably long legs, toes and talons for snatching up prey. If you see any mice or voles out and about when the barn owl is around, tell them to hide quickly because it's their favourite snack!

Fallow Deer

As one of the most common types of deer found at lakeside “normally very early morning drinking out of the lake” we have become quite fond of the fallow deer. Both large and elegant, the fallow deer is mainly found in grasslands and woodlands, grazing on grass, herbs, berries, acorns and bark.

They can be quite shy, so if you're lucky enough to see one, stay calm and quiet and just watch from a respectful distance.

During the breeding season in the autumn, males will probably be fighting over females, which is quite a sight.

Greater spotted woodpecker

Although you might catch a glimpse of several species of woodpecker at Lakeside, our favourite is the greater spotted woodpecker. This beautiful looking bird is well known for ‘drumming’ against trees which it does to mark its territory, hunt for insects in the tree and excavate holes in trees to live in. They have an easily recognisable, bouncy flight and you are most likely to see one in woodland areas.

Lakeside Bats

Lakeside has an abundance of species of bats, many of which are rusting in the trees surrounding Lakeside. At night when it is dry and there are lots of flying insects you will see lots of bats flying around the bungalow and near to the lake.

If you would like to borrow our professional bat detector please call into reception.

Gunby Hall is a country house in Gunby, near Spilsby, in Lincolnshire, England, reached by a half mile long private drive. The Estate comprises the 42-room Gunby Hall, listed Grade I,[1] a clocktower,[2] listed Grade II* and a carriage house and stable block which are listed Grade II.[3][4] It was given to the National Trust in 1944 by the trustees of the Gunby Hall Estate: Lady Montgomery-Massingberd, Major Norman Leith-Hay-Clarke and Field Marshal Sir Archibald Montgomery-Massingberd,[5] together with its contents and approximately 1,500 acres of land. Gunby Hall is currently leased from the National Trust with a requirement to open the Hall's State Rooms and Gardens to the public.

Gibraltar Point Nature Reserve

a dynamic stretch of unspoilt coastline running southwards from the edge of Skegness to the mouth of the Wash. Landscape and wildlife Gibraltar Point impresses by its sheer scale and diversity of wildlife but to appreciate it fully you need to see it in different seasons. In spring, when the first of the migrants stop off to refuel or establish territories. In summer, little terns may be seen fishing in the shallows and skylarks are in full song above the purple haze of the salt marshes. In autumn, huge whirling flocks of waders can be seen on the high tides. And in winter, there brent geese, shorelark and snow bunting as well as flocks of redwing and fieldfare.

Opening times The reserve is open all year. The new Visitor Centre is open from 10am to 3pm. a varied menu in the cafe including Sunday lunches. Most paths are level and well surfaced but can be muddy at times. Some of the hides are accessible to wheelchairs. Gibraltar Point is about 3 miles south of Skegness. The nearest bus and train stations are in Skegness.
